Faith and Culture

Faith itself is cultural. It does not exist in a naked state, as sheer religion. Simply by telling man who he is and how he should go about being human, faith is creating culture, and is culture. This message of faith is not an abstract message; it is one that has matured through a long history and through manifold intercultural fusions, in the course of which it has shaped an entire way of life... a way of man's dealing with himself, with his neighbor, with the world, and with God. Faith itself exists as culture...

The cross is, first, a break, the being cast forth, the being lifted up from the earth, but in that very way it becomes a new center of gravity, a point of gravitation drawing things up from the history of the world, for the bringing together of what is divided. Anyone entering the Church has to be aware that he is entering a separate, active cultural entity with her own many-layered intercultural character that has grown up in the course of history.

Without a certain exodus, a breaking off with one's life in all its aspects, one cannot become a Christian. Faith is no private path to God; it leads into the people of God and into its history. God has linked himself to a history, which is now also his history and which we cannot simply erase...because the people of God is not just a single cultural entity but is gathered together from all peoples. Therefore, the first cultural identity, rising again from the break that was made, has its place therein; and not only that, but it is needed in order to allow the Incarnation of Christ, of the Word, to attain its whole fullness.

Pope Benedict XVI

In Peace and Love,

Fr. Carmen and Fr. Tom

Panhandlers

We ask that you do not give money to panhandlers around our church properties, especially before and after Masses on Sundays. We feed the hungry when they come to our doors and no one is turned away. If other needs are requested, our Parish Social Ministers take care of their needs. We do not make a practice of giving money that may be used for enabling a harmful habit. The money collected from the Poor Boxes is used to help in serving the poor. A better use of your money is to give your offering for the needy, by supporting the St. Vincent de Paul through the poor boxes. This money in turn will go to those in need. Please do not feel obligated in giving money to Panhandlers who make a habit of continually asking.
